Abstract. The article examines the most comprehensive reports of the head of the Terek region as historical sources for the study of various aspects of the socio-economic life of both the region and the Nalchik district that is part of it. The annual reports of the head of the region from 1889 to 1905 were analyzed, namely the period when Small Kabarda was not part of the Nalchik district. The structure and content of reports, as well as their dynamics, have been studied in detail. It is concluded that the information presented in the reports of the head of the region allows not only to substantively study the issues of organizing a food supply system for residents of the Nalchik district.

Keywords: report of the head of the region, Nalchik district, Terek region, food supply
